Compliments

Complaints
We aim to provide the best possible service to customers. However, if we get it wrong, we want to know about it and will try to put things right as quickly as possible.

Our aim
We take complaints very seriously. While we try to provide a good service, we know that sometimes things go wrong. We have developed a complaints procedure in response to this.

We aim to sort out complaints quickly and fairly and we will try to sort out any mistake or misunderstanding straight away. Sometimes it may take longer, but we will tell you how long it will take.
This leaflet explains how you can complain about our services and how we will try to put things right if they go wrong.

Making a complaint will not affect your right to receive our services.

These procedures came into force from April 2009 in line with the Local Authority and National Health Services Complaints Regulations 2009.

Who can make a complaint?

• A person who receives or has received the service (the service user), or
• Someone acting on behalf of the service user with their consent, or
• A person who is affected or likely to be affected by the actions or decisions made by Adult Social Care

What can I complain about?

• The sorts of things you may complain about are:
• If you receive a poor quality service – including services we have arranged but are delivered by an independent care provider
• Our staff’s attitude or behaviour
• Your assessment, care plan, or review of your services
• The charge you pay for your service and how we have assessed it
• Any service adult social care provides.

It is always helpful for us to know from the outset what you want us to do to put things right.
What happens when I make a complaint?

• When you contact us with your concerns, we will see if we can sort out the problem straightaway without you needing to do anything else.

• We will acknowledge your complaint within 2 working days

• We may telephone you to discuss your concerns.

We will let you know:

• if it would be helpful to have a meeting to discuss your concerns

• how long it is likely to take us to examine your complaint; and

• who will reply to you

This is known as your complaint plan.
What we learn from complaints

We keep records of all the complaints we receive and monitor them regularly. This helps us to:

- identify areas of service where we need to make changes and improvements; and
- make sure we are dealing with complaints effectively and consistently.

Who can help me make a complaint?

You can ask a friend or relative to speak to us on your behalf with your permission.

Or, if you prefer, you can ask us to put you in contact with an independent organisation, such as the Citizens Advice Bureau or help you find an advocate to help you with your complaint.

Independent provider

If your complaint is about an independent care provider and you have not been able to resolve your problems with them yourself we will look at what they have done and we will reply to you directly.

Joint services

If your complaint also involves a service provided by the NHS, such as a hospital, we will contact them with your permission and agree who will reply to you.

We will tell you who will reply to all your complaints. You will receive one reply on behalf of both organisations.
What happens if I am not satisfied with the manager’s response to my complaint?

If you are not happy with the manager’s response to your complaint, you should contact the Complaints Manager straightaway.

We will discuss why you are still dissatisfied and what else you think should be done to put things right.

We will see if there is any other way to resolve your complaint. We may, for example, suggest a meeting with the senior manager to talk over your concerns (this is known as a local resolution meeting) or mediation.
What happens if there is an investigation?

If we agree that your complaint cannot be resolved locally, and that it needs to be investigated, we will appoint an investigating officer to look into your complaint.

The investigating officer will contact you and write down the things you are unhappy with and what you want done about them. This is your complaint statement.

The investigating officer will discuss with you how long the investigation is likely to take.

The investigating officer will write a report and may make recommendations to the relevant Head of Service.
What happens next?
You will receive a copy of the investigating officer’s report and a letter from the Head of Service setting out what they propose to do to sort out the complaint.

if you are not satisfied with the final decision, or the way the local authority have dealt with your complaint, you may contact the Local Government Ombudsman directly.
